guarino argues in this book that the doctrinal form of the christian faith in its essential characteristics calls for certain theoretical exigencies this is to say that the proportion and beauty of the form is not served or illuminated by simply any presuppositions rather a determinate understanding of first philosophy of the nature of truth of hermeneutical theory of the predication of language and mutual correlation is required if christian faith and doctrine are to maintain a recognizable and suitably mediative form failing to adduce specific principles will lead either to a simple assertion of christian truth in which case the form of christianity becomes less intelligible and attractive or one will substitute a radically changed form which is itself inappropriate for displaying the fundamental revelatory narrative of faith the house of christian faith possesses a certain proportion of structure the form will sag badly if one removes an undergirding item or if one beam is replaced with another of variable shape or size the form s beauty will either be obscured no longer clearly visible or the form will become something quite different no longer architectonically related to what was originally the case the intention of this book is to discuss those doctrinal characteristics considered fundamental to the christian faith as protective of its revelatory form and concomitantly to examine the theoretical principles required if such form is to remain both intelligible and beautiful christian doctrine mcclendon tells us is no laundry list of propositions to be believed but is rather an essential practice of the church doctrines are those shared convictions which the church must teach and live out if it is to be the church the author rejects the prevailing assumptions stemming from the rationalism of the enlightenment and redefines theology as a discipline within the context of particular religious beliefs and practices of concrete believing communities mcclendon ties the reading of scripture to the community's understanding of itself and its own mission most systematicians take as their starting point the nature of god and scripture as the means by which god's nature is revealed but what would a systematic theology look like that began with an experiential knowledge of god here edmond chua offers a method for just such an approach beginning with realms of human experience including psychology cultural diversity and religious plurality he builds the framework of a systematic theology that is inclusive and pluriform while retaining the core tenets of a christian doctrine of god notwithstanding his novel methodology chua's argument remains biblically rooted and appreciative of the christian tradition in the latter half of the book he returns to the classical doctrines of the trinity christology evil sin and salvation allowing his inclusive view of the human religious experience to shed new light on the wisdom bequeathed by paul augustine aquinas luther barth and others the result is a bold christian vision that is culturally engaged and globally applicable of interest to systematic theologians while contributing to interreligious dialogue colin gunton was a world renowned scholar systematic theologian and reformed church minister revelation and reason is an in depth analysis derived from the annual lecture seminar course he gave to maa students at king s college london approximately one third of the work is a direct transcript and analysis of the three two hour lectures colin gunton gave at a break neck speed 1 from reason and revelation to revelation and reason 2 the modern problem in an historical context 3 aspects of karl barth on faith and reason these lectures were a history analysis and critique of revelation and reason in systematic theology and philosophy culminating with karl barth the remainder is a transcript of the unrehearsed unscripted extemporary responses colin gunton gave to make student's papers on set topics in the revelation and reason course seamlessly integrated where relevant with detail from the main three lectures. Colin was a creative lecturer and widely read theologian and philosopher. These extemporaneous responses show the breadth of his learning and his genius spontaneously to bring to mind relevant ideas from a wealth of theologians and philosophers whilst incisively and piercingly exposing the flaws as well as the strengths under consideration from this wealth of reading. Colin gave space to the free rein of his mind particularly when fielding questions or trying to analyze a particular strand of a theologian's thought. Revelation and Reason is a complementary volume to Colin Gunton's posthumously published The Barth Lectures: Continuum 2007 and to the first volume of his unfinished systematic theology also forthcoming from T. T. Clark.

The task of theology is to translate the priceless message of the gospel of Christ from its ancient sources into current experiences and patterns of thought. In this first volume the author presents a lucid and accessible account of the word of God and challenges his readers to find their own responses to this message. In volume II he interprets the classical assertions of the Christian faith in terms of God's creative and redemptive project.
